Join ENCOMPASS and the Western Justice Center for a special preview of Creating Bias-Free Classrooms, a powerful training program that uses live, interactive theater to explore teaching methods for handling student bias and conflict. Utilizing a cast of teenage actors, the program transports educators into contemporary classroom settings, illuminating the power of teachers to increase safety and equity for all students. This preview focuses on bias related to sexual orientation—ENCOMPASS also uses this model to explore racial or gender bias in the classroom. For more program info, visit www.encompass.org.
